

UNION SQUARE

Union Square Park 2010

Whereas Union Square already features ample open space in the central business district, much of it lacks effective program. For example, the current stock of outdoor seating lies across four lanes of traffic from one of the area's most utilized bus stops (which itself lacks any seating amenities for transit patrons). This proposal for a reconfigured Union Square Park replaces the area that will be lost to road restructuring and caters to existing needs and new programs (such as a renovated community arts center, with integrated cafe and gallery) that serve to activate the space.

